You don't have to go to Europe or Africa to experience paleontology. That's the premise behind Anthony D. Fredericks' Walking with Dinosaurs. Inspired by the films of his youth, Anthony treks across Colorado in search of the bones left behind by the dinosaurs that once lived here. What he finds is an abundance of sites where the distant past is still within view, often just a short walk away from the road. With wit and verve, he provides an account of his time on road and trail, bringing the reader along on his journey. Included are driving directions to all the sites.
